First Term English Exam Level:3ALLE	December 2018 Duration :3 hours

Part one: Reading interpreting (14pts)

In the wake of the Arab Spring, corruption has become one of the Arab World's most talked about problems. Islam strictly prohibits corruption and there are undoubtedly many in the Arab World who take the Quran's injunction seriously. Corruption continues, however, to be a fact of life across the Arab World and has been a key trigger for the popular protests that have swept the region since 2011. Several countries have since stepped up efforts to fight it, although with mixed results: the United Arab Emirates, Qatar, Oman and the Saudi Arabia.

Though the initiatives are notable in a region that has long tolerated corruption, still there is a hidden force in Arab society, which is called Wasta. Often jokingly referred to as "vitamin W", Wasta is described as "as an intrinsic part of culture that smooths the way to jobs, promotions, university places and much else in business and government. Those with Wasta can jump the queue and, with the right connections, can solve almost any problem. While Wasta may have a positive side whereby it humanizes bureaucracy, it also hinders economic development and impacts business by providing unfair advantage, yielding decisions based on connections instead of merit and reducing productivity in the Arab world.

Consequently, when doing business in the Arab World, it is critical to be attuned to the invisible hand of Wasta by strengthening integrity systems and conducting extensive carefulness. Wasta remains a challenge when doing business in the Arab World, but by recognizing and addressing the issue through in-depth carefulness – rather than accepting it as an unavoidable risk of conducting business in the region – one can mitigate the problems associated with this cultural phenomenon.

companies assume ethical business escape immoral

Some people say that businessmen should apply their own personal……1…. standards when doing business. They tell us that you need……2…… to make money; that the world of business is a jungle and that if we respect ethics, we can undermine the values of hard work and freedom. Let me tell you that I don't agree with these arguments at all. I believe that such arguments are only excuses to……3…… the responsibility of these businesses……4…….. As far as I am concerned, I say that ethics has everything to do with money.

Part two: Written Expression(6pts): Choose one of the following topics:

Topic ONE: Many companies suffer from a decrease in their productivity because of some of their employee's unethical practices. Write a composition of 80 to 100 words suggesting how these employees should behave to be more responsible and thus more productive. Use the following notes:

- Respect the company's code of ethics.
- Be aware of the necessity of hard work.
- Respect work time.
- Use the company's resources ethically.
- Keep the company's secret information safe.

Topic TWO: Imagine you are a mayor of your town .what would you do to fight corruption?

Good Luck
