Third Term English Exam	Duration : 02h30

Subject two

Part One: Reading (14pts)

A/ Comprehension (7pts)

Read the text carefully then do the following activities.

After the fall of the Toltec civilization, which flourished from the 10th to the 11th century, waves of immigrants flooded into Mexico's central plateau area around Lake Texcoco. As late arrivals, the Aztecs were forced to occupy the swampy area on the western side of the lake. They were surrounded by powerful neighbours who exacted tribute from them, and their only piece of dry land was a tiny island surrounded by marshes.

That the Aztecs were able to build this unpromising start into a powerful empire within two centuries was due in part to their belief in a certain legend. The legend specified that the Aztecs would found a great city at the place where they found an eagle eating a serpent while perched upon a cactus growing out of a rock. According to a later legend, Aztec priests discovered this scene near Lake Texcoco and there built their city named Tenochtitlan. At its height, the Aztec Empire covered much of modern Mexico's central plateau and stretched down into the northern part of Guatemala.

As the Aztecs grew in number, they established superior military and civil organisations. By 1325 they had founded the city of Tenochtitlan on the side of present-day Mexico City.
